Waters House
Princess Anne private

c. 1859

Known for most of the last century as the Waters house, this two-story, center hall frame dwelling on South Somerset Avenue was evidently built on the eve of the Civil War by Sydney C. Long, who bought the lot from John and Henrietta Allen on February 4, 1859 for $200. Sydney, and his wife, Mary, owned the property for a little over five years before they sold the house and lot, "...now in the possession and occupancy of Sydney C. Long in or near Princess Anne..." for $5,500. It appears Sydney and Mary Long acquired the inspiration for their bracketed house from Francis Barnes, who finished construction of his modified Italianate style townhouse a few years earlier.

Following the Civil War the property passed through a number of hands until John W. and Marianna Carroll acquired title to the house in November of 1886. The Carrolls owned the frame dwelling for close to thirteen years, and then transferred the title to Henry J. Waters in 1899. At the death of Henry J. Waters in 1942, the property was inherited by his wife, Emily B. Waters, and her death ownership the house was occupied by Emily W. Waters until 1977.
